Sherry K vs the "Blue Lady"

Vickie and I had the distinction of playing at the one and only Story Inn--home of the legendary ghost, the "Blue Lady," recently. According to the owner of the rustic inn just south of Nashville, Indiana:

"Many eyewitnesses believe that the ghost, known locally as the 'Blue Lady' because she can supposedly be summoned by turning on a blue light in one of the rooms above the restaurant, is one of the wives of Dr. George Story. This room's history is so remarkable that we renamed it after the "Blue Lady" in 2001."

So, needlessly to say, we were a bit apprehensive about playing there, but being the adventurous and dedicated musical duo that we are, we decided to take her on by playing there anyway. The Blue Lady, however, had other plans for us. First, the digital keyboard in the dining room had been inexplicably changed to another key and could not be changed back. So we showed her--we brought our own! Not to be outdone, she granted us 2 sets of playing time, and just as we were about to start a 3rd.....

bzzzt.....bzzzt.... bzzzt. The lights flickered off and on for about 60 seconds before the power went out altogether. I guess she had enough of us! Check out the picture below---is that some sort of ghostly thing on the keyboard? Who's talking about Sherry K now?

Jason Hoffman, of Whatzup.com, has this to say about my CD

"A Whole New Woman":

My personal favorite is "Female Problems." Not that I like female problems, but I do like how the song careens along, changing directions with a cartoon-like pace, incorporating a huge array of sounds and instruments, from massive and ominous pipe organs to bells, woodwinds and timpani, being capricious one moment and sad the next and bounding from innocence to deviance in an instant. If this is what it's like to be a woman, I'll take my "deformed chromosome" any day!

Sherry K has packed years of experience and expertise into these 12 fun-loving compositions. To explore your feminine side or experience the myriad joys of being A Whole New Woman, double-X click over to
